ROUTE 66 REVIVAL

El Vado, opening in 1937, was one of New Mexico's original motels on historic Route 66. First connecting coasts, then in the 50's and 60's serving as a main highway for vacationers, El Vado's mid-way location on Rt. 66 provided an alluring stop for the adventurous. Today, El Vado is a unique blend of historic charm and culture combined with modern comforts and amenities.

The event spaces open into a light filled parlor which also acts as a lounge for guests. Features in the parlor include an installation of vintage newspaper clippings recovered during renovation, and contemporary photography by local artists. Velvet settees fuse with eclectic lines and bohemian patterns. Creating both an intimate and open space, large windows provide view and access to an outdoor patio to accommodate a variety of settings for any event.
