

THE NEWELL HOUSE

The Newell House

Our Story

The story of the Newell House starts in the 1980s, when several Black professionals bought land in Pleasant Garden, NC, and built houses on it. Newell's family moved into their newly-constructed, five-bedroom home during the holiday season of 1983. Michael was born in January 1984. Over the years, his childhood home and its 16-acre lot was a celebratory place his parent's friends gathered at the house for homecoming parties, his sister got married there, and the home hosted countless family reunions. After the kids grew up and moved out, Michael's father passed away. The house sat unoccupied for many years.

After 16 years, Michael felt the house was ready for a new life. The house would make the perfect wedding venue, he thought. After much thought and consideration, The Newell House renovation began. 7,000-square-foot colonial-style house with stately white columns lining the porch. Inside, it has unique features like a record player built into a kitchen wall. It once set the home's soundtrack a mix of gospel, Motown, soul, and make-you-dance Prince hits.

Today, The Newell House has transformed from a loving family home to the backdrop of many special events and memories to be enjoyed by generations to come.
