THE ROOKERY

CHICAGO'S BELOVED ICON

History

One of Chicago's most iconic buildings, The Rookery, provides a historic setting showcasing the collaboration and brilliance of Chicago's finest architects. The Rookery was designed by architects Burnham and Root in 1888, and renovated by Frank Lloyd Wright in 1905. In 1931, the building was renovated again by William Drummond and 1992 saw The Rookery's restoration to the grandeur of Wright's original work. Since this time, building management has worked to preserve this architectural masterpiece.

Location

The Rookery's central location, in the heart of Chicago's Financial District is convenient for photo opportunities at several of Chicago's landmarks. The Chicago Board of Trade, steps away from The Rookery, provides the perfect backdrop for your 'just married' picture!

Oriel Staircase

The staircase at The Rookery is arguably one of the most photographed staircases in the country. Brides and Grooms are invited to utilize this staircase as the backdrop for jaw-dropping photographs of the space.

Event Suite

A semi-private lounge area on the second floor is available for clients' use. Tables, chairs and a floor-length mirror provide the perfect spot for touch-ups pre-ceremony and a quiet moment post-ceremony. Our staff will prepare the suite with hors d'Oeuvres and cocktails immediately following the ceremony.
